Leadership 2050; Critical Challenges, Key Contexts and Emerging Trends

EDITOR PROFILES

Dr Matthew Sowcik is the Director of Leadership Education and Assistant Professor in the Jay S. Sidhu School of Business and Leadership at Wilkes University. Matthew earned a bachelor’s degree from Wilkes University and a master’s degree from Columbia University in New York City. He is currently pursuing a Doctorate in Leadership Studies at Gonzaga University in Spokane, Washington.

His primary focus includes the Personal and Professional Development program, the Outstanding Leaders Forum which has arranged for speakers such as Colin Powell, Rudy Giuliani, and Vicente Fox, leadership curriculum design, teaching, and conducting research on leadership development.

Matthew also works in a consultant role providing one-on-one coaching, and leadership, emotional intelligence, and team building training, through dynamic experiential practices. He also serves as a consultant to The New York Times, focusing on the newspaper’s educational programming around leadership.

Anthony Andenoro is currently serving as an Assistant Professor of Leadership Education within the Department of Agricultural Education and Coordinator of the campus-wide Leadership Minor at the University of Florida. He earned a BA in Communication from the University of Toledo, a MS in Educational Administration from Texas A&M University, and a PhD in Agricultural Education with an emphasis in leadership from Texas A&M University.

His research interests include the development of creativity and intelligence in leadership, using storytelling as a vehicle for the development of self-awareness, the development of emotionally intelligent instruction and instructors, and the globalization leadership curricula. Tony has published several articles in journals, including the Journal of Leadership Studies, Journal of Business & Leadership, the Journal of Leadership Education, Educational Considerations, and others.

He is also heavily involved in international and national service through his work as the President for the Association of Leadership Educators, as a member of the International Leadership Association, and as the Associate Editor for Leadership for the Journal of Business and Leadership.

Mindy S. McNutt is Associate Professor of Leadership at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio. She has served as Program Director for both the Organizational Leadership (OL) and the Master of Science in Leadership Development (MSLD) programs at the Wright State Dayton campus and was the inaugural and sole faculty member and program advisor for the OL program at its inception at the Wright State Lake Campus.

Mindy has engaged in leadership curriculum development for over 30 years for high school youth, undergraduate curricular and extra-curricular programs, and most recently served with numerous faculty colleagues to write the proposal for the new Ed.D. in Organizational Studies (DOS).

She earned her B.A. in Communication, M.S. in Personnel Counseling, and Ed.S. in Educational Leadership and her Ph.D. in Higher Education Administration. Currently she teaches in all three leadership programs at Wright State, OL, MSLD, and the DOS where she developed the doctoral internship. Among her varied research interests are leadership education, transformational leadership, women in leadership, and leader values.

Susan Elaine Murphy is Chair in Leadership Development at the University of Edinburgh Business School. She was formerly Director of the School of Strategic Leadership Studies at James Madison University and Professor of Leadership Studies. She has published numerous articles and book chapters on leadership, leadership development, and mentoring. Her work has been published in Academy of Management Executive (currently Academy of Management Perspectives), Leadership Quarterly, Organizational Behaviour and Human Decision Making, Journal of Vocational Behaviour, Journal of Business and Psychology, Journal of Applied Psychology. She also serves on the editorial board of The Leadership Quarterly.

Susan earned her PhD and MS from the University of Washington in Organisational Psychology, where she also earned a MBA at the Michael G. Foster School of Business concentrating in organisational behaviour and human resources. Her current research examines leadership requirements, effectiveness, and development across different contexts and organisational levels.