

" Entrepreneurs from Developing Countries have the potential to be among the most successful people across the world "

Editor Spotlight : Allam Ahmed

Editor of The World Journal of Entrepreneurship, Management and Sustainable Development shares his thoughts on Sustainable Entrepreneurship.

The World Journal of Entrepreneurship, Management and Sustainable Development (WJEMSD) was launched in 2005 and is published in partnership with the World Association for Sustainable Development (WASD).

Both WASD and WJEMSD share similar values and beliefs about the world in terms of equality, injustice, diversity and sustainability and work together to help enterprises make a difference in these areas.

The journal has offered enormous knowledge and practical guidance to create sustainable inclusive growth and development in society through knowledge and innovation.

KEY MILESTONES IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

THE UNITED NATIONS CLIMATE CHANGE CONFERENCE 2016

The COP22 pact in Paris 2016 will provide the basis for initiatives towards the reduction in greenhouse gases. This conference will create an enormous opportunity for entrepreneurs to provide the technology and change management mechanisms for governments and nations in order to meet this goal.

SENDAI FRAMEWORK FOR DISASTER RISK REDUCTION 2015

This framework energized the global, political and scientific community to rethink strategies into making communities and countries stronger when it comes to withstand and preparing for disasters. This presented an opportunity for sustainable entrepreneurs to fill in gaps in technology, expertise and infrastructure, while influencing research in sustainability in the face of disasters.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE...

" What we want now is to move towards bringing this journal to where it is needed the most - the developing world, and make a real difference in bridging the gap between the first world and developing countries. With all the knowledge available in the journal, it is increasingly important that we disseminate this information as widely as possible. "
