The editor selects up to three reviewers and asks them to evaluate the manuscript against a set of criteria.

The editor makes the final decision, taking into account the reviewers’ recommendations.

The editor receives the reviewers’ recommendations.

The editor notifies the author that their paper has been accepted.

The editor notifies the author that their paper has been rejected and shares a copy of the reviewers’ comments.

The editor notifies the author that their paper requires revisions and shares a copy of the reviewers’ comments.

The author resubmits their revised paper.

The editor sends the revised paper to the same reviewers.